Outreach and popularization (selection)

- A short video featuring my work was developed by Unifocus of the University of Groningen on migration and the Dutch welfare state (January 2017).
- I have published regularly articles in Demos, a bulletin on population issues published by NIDI and aiming at the broader public, policy makers and politicians.
- I was invited by the European Commission to provide a lecture and my view on migration and integration in Europe in light of the refugee crisis in September 2015 and a follow up meeting in February 2016.
- I am an active member of Population Europe, a network of leading demographic institutes in Europe. They have covered my work in a podcast that is available online as well as in several PopDigest publications which are short summaries of scientific work aimed at the public.

- I have organized several policy seminars at NIDI amongst others on European migration and its consequences which aimed at policy makers and politicians and was co-organized between NIDI and the Sustainable Society group of the UoG in 2015 and in Spring 2018.
- In 2015 and 2016 I have been an organising member of the demographic exhibition ‘How to get Hundred and enjoy it’. This exhibition is developed by Population Europe and its partners and travelled through Europe (In 2014 I coordinated it in Brussels) and was shown in the Netherlands (The Hague & Groningen in May/ June 2016. At NIDI we added the Dutch component to the exhibition to provide the audience with relevant information that is directly related to their lives.
- As PI of the ERC Starting Grant Project ‘Families of Migration Origin a life course perspective’ I collaborated with the Royal Academy of Art in The Hague (2015-16). This resulted in a photo exhibition of work of last year students that reflect findings of my work in an artistic way. The work was shown as part of the above mentioned exhibition and in the European Parliament in Brussels late September 2016. In addition, I collaborated with professional movie makers to develop short animations showing the findings of my study for a wider audience. Currently we are still working on developing school materials related to migration and integration based on my research findings. <http://www.familifeproject.com/art>
- I have been actively involved and coordinated (together with the head of support staff) the development of the new NIDI website and the new logo that were introduced beginning 2020.
